Excerpt from The Wheat Situation: Mar.-Apr., 1950 Adjustment Act of 1938, to an amount which would meet domestic and export needs and provide a carry-over which included a, reserve for years of small yields. In February 1913 acreage and marketing restrictions were removed. Acreage allotments were resumed on the 1950 crop. 2] High yields resulted not only as a result of favorable growing conditions but also from the increased use of more timely and improved production practices, such as stubble mulch in the Great Plains; chemical control of weeds, insects and disease; and increased use of fertilizer; also from the development and more widespread adoption of higher yielding varieties. Even the bushel yield in 1919. When growing conditions were the poorest in 9 years, was about 10 bushels per acre.
