Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from The Genesis of American Anti-Missionism In addition to the main thesis of the book, other theses which I regard as of importance will be defended. The most prominent of these are: First, that American Baptist missionary activity is not due, save indirectly or in a very minor degree, to Carey or to the development of missions in district associations, but is directly traceable to Judson and Rice. Second, that Alexander Campbell was the greatest and most influential of the anti-missionaries. To many this will be exhibiting Mr. Campbell in a new role. Third, that foreign missions is the mother of education, organization, home missions and other denominational activities. There is necessarily much of history given, although the aim has not been to give an exhaustive history of this period, but to give enough to prove my positions. These positions were taken.
