Excerpt from Materials and Construction: A Text-Book of Elementary Structural Design The formulas given for solution of problems coming under reinforced concrete are taken for the most part from Concretel by Edward Godfrey, M. Am. Soc. C. E. These formulas were first presented by Mr. Godfrey in Engineering News, being quite thoroughly discussed, both favorably and otherwise, all of which discussion appears in the book mentioned. The formulas are notable for their simplicity; at the same time they point onto a definite result to be obtained which is an important factor for the beginner. The author has compared the formulas presented, with others of much more complicated arrangement and the differ ence in results is comparatively small. In dealing with this material we must keep in mind the fact that work is being done in an element which does not lend itself to refined calculations, and for which we have at best only very unsatisfactory formulas, if results obtained by their use are expected to check up with experiment. Paper No. 12502 by Gaetano Lanza, M. Am. Soc. M. E., is interesting and should be carefully read by teachers handling this subject with classes. Throughout the work the principles should be brought out by the teacher, in the solution of problems before the class.
