Medicaid Long-Term Care: State Use of Assessment Instruments in Care Planning: Pemd-96-4

By -

BiblioGov. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 22 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.1in.Pursuant to a congressional request, GAO reviewed how publicly funded programs assess the need for home and community-based long-term care services for the poor disabled elderly, focusing on the: (1) comprehensiveness of the assessment instruments; (2) uniformity of their administration; and (3) uniformity of training for staff who conduct the assessments. GAO found that: (1) all 49 states reviewed use an assessment instrument to determine the long-term care needs of the poor disabled elderly and some also use them for other eligibility determinations; (2) 48 of the programs provide information to their clients about services not covered and most give referrals and assistance to obtain those services; (3) all of the assessment instruments covered physical and mental health and functional abilities of the disabled elderly, but inclusion of their social resources, economic resources, and physical environment ranged from 69 percent to 84 percent; (4) dependence on assistance with daily living activities was the only specific topic included in all instruments; (5) most assessments use face-to-face interviews, but only a minority of them specify the wording of questions; (6) most programs have...
